MISS TIPTON IS SECRETARY CO. S. S. ASSN.

T. J. Winebrenner Is Elected Treasurer; Office Divided At Friday Meeting.

PAY TRIBUTE TO MISS DOUGHERTY

Miss Ellen Tipton was elected corresponding secretary and T. J. Winebrenner was chosen treasurer of the Adams county Sunday school association at a meeting of officers of the county organization at the Y. W. C. A., Friday evening.

Miss Tipton and Mr. Winebrenner were elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Miss Lily B. Dougherty, of Gettysburg, secretary-treasurer of the Sunday school association.

It was decided by the officers to split up the duties of the office and elect a secretary and a treasurer instead of combining the positions.

Minute of Respect

The officers also adopted a minute of respect on the death of Miss Dougherty. "For over a score of years," the minute reads, "Miss Dougherty was an officer in the county association. Her efficiency and devotion earned for her a deserved respect from the state officials and the confidence and esteem of her colleagues. In her death the association has lost one of its most loyal workers and her departure leaves a vacancy that will be hard to fill."

The committee which presented the minute comprised Dr. M. Hadwin Fischer, Mrs. Ira Henderson and Thomas J. Winebrenner.

The officers decided to begin promotion of the programs for vacation Bible schools and the establishment of an honor roll, to be published in the year book, listing all Sunday schools who pay their per capita quota before July 1.

State Confab Here
The officers voted $10 toward the forthcoming financial campaign of the Y. W. C. A.

In view of the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Sunday school association to be held here October 11, 12 and 13, the officers decided to hold monthly meetings, and the next session will be held March 31 at the Y. W. C. A.

The officers also are preparing for the county Sunday school convention to be held at Fairfield the last week in July.

Harry Baker, Littlestown, president of the county association, presided at the meeting, which was attended by the following:

Herbert Zepp, New Oxford R. 2; Roy W. Bream, Gettysburg R. 4; Luther Lady, Biglerville; Luther Cashman, Gettysburg R. 7; Miss Marian Walter, Biglerville; Miss Ellen Tipton, Gettysburg; Russell Spangler, Gettysburg R. 7; Dr. M. Hadwin Fischer, Gettysburg; Miss Maude Whiteleather, Gettysburg; Mrs. Ira Henderson, Fairfield, and Miss Mae I. Beamer, New Oxford.

HOLD PRE-LENT SERVICES HERE

100 Lutheran Ministers Expected To Attend Services Here Next Tuesday.

Approximately 100 Lutheran ministers in the West Pennsylvania synod are expected here next Tuesday to attend the annual pre-Lenten retreat at the synod at the Lutheran theological seminary. The Rev. Dr. M. R. Hamsher, of Mechanicsburg, is president of the synod.

The retreat opens at 10 o'clock, with devotionals in charge of the Rev. Dr. E. C. Ruby, of York, treasurer of synod.

The remainder of the day's program follows:

"History and Meaning of Lent," Dr. Harvey D. Hoover, of the seminary; preparatory service, "Patience Attending the Mission of Christ," the Rev. W. R. Sammel, York; confession and absolution, the Rev. M. E. Smith, New Freedom, secretary of the synod; communion service, the Rev. Dr. Hamsher; noon, dinner at the refectory.

One-thirty o'clock, devotionals, Dr. Herbert C. Alleman, of the seminary; "Burden Attending the Mission of Christ," the Rev. W. W. Barkley, Shippenburg; "Reality Attending the Mission of Christ," the Rev. H. F. Bink, Camp Hill; "Joy Attending the Mission of Christ," the Rev. J. H. Hege, Dover.

Homemade ice cream 20 cents a pint. The Sweetland.

Franklin D. Roosevelt May Be Treated In Same Pool With Anne Faber

President-elect Franklin Delano Roosevelt may use the same pools, for his periodical swims as are being used to give Little Anne Faber, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Faber, Chambersburg street, and little Miss Lois Meredith, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Meredith, of Hanover, their pool-treatments, in the long fight to cure the two little girls of infantile paralysis.

The Misses Faber and Meredith have been at Children's Hospital school, Baltimore, for a number of months, having been stricken with the dread disease last summer.

Several times each week the youngsters are given the pool-treatments, a process of massaging the afflicted limbs while under water. Marked progress is being shown in the youngsters' conditions.

President-elect Roosevelt suffered the same affliction some time after he retired as assistant secretary of the navy, in Wilson's cabinet. For some time it was believed that Mr. Roosevelt would never walk again. His persistent fight against the dread disease brought startling results after he started pool treatments in Warm Springs, Georgia.

While he was governor of New York a special pool was built in the executive mansion for this purpose. With his election to the presidency some provision must be made to enable the new chief executive to continue his treatments.

A Baltimore newspaper published the following account telling of the invitation extended to the president-elect to use the Baltimore pools, accompanied by illustrations showing one of the nurses treating Miss Meredith in the pool:

"In the physio-therapy building at the hospital are two small pools, the water of which can be heated to the temperature of the beneficial baths at Warm Springs, Georgia.

"And it is rumored that the president-elect will come to Baltimore frequently to use them, instead of swimming in the White House pool which may be constructed or of taking the long jaunt to the lazy Southland.

Bowles Memorial
"The Georgia baths were established some time ago by the president-elect, with a committee of three appointed to help him.

"Miss Mimms came to Baltimore when the physio-therapy building was donated to the Children's hospital by Mrs. Thomas Bowles in memory of her husband. Here, as in Georgia, the beneficial underwater exercises used in treatment of infantile paralysis are given the same treatment the president-elect takes at Warm Springs.

"So when Mr. Roosevelt came through Baltimore, on his campaign tour last November, Miss Mimms met him at the railroad

Rev. H. E. Berkey Is Buried Today

Funeral services for the Rev. Harvey Edmund Berkey, retired Lutheran minister, who was found dead in bed at his home on West Broadway, Wednesday morning, were held this afternoon from the Berkey home, the Rev. Dwight P. Putnam, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. H. M. Hamsher, of Mechanicsburg, president of the West Pennsylvania synod of the Lutheran church. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

Pallbearers were Dr. Frank Kramer, Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, Dr. John B. Zinn, Dr. Frank H. Clutz, Dr. C. F. Sanders and Charles H. Smith.

Hotel Man Dies

Horace Leland Wiggins, Head Of Benjamin Franklin, Occasional Visitor Here, Passes.

Horace Leland Wiggins, managing director of the Benjamin Franklin hotel, Philadelphia, vice president of the United Hotels corporation, and former president of the Pennsylvania State Hotel association, died this morning in an Elmhurst, N. Y., hospital from the effects of a paralytic stroke he suffered two weeks ago.

Mr. Wiggins was well known in Gettysburg and had a number of intimate friends here, including Henry M. Scharf, manager of the Hotel Gettysburg. He was an occasional visitor to Gettysburg.

He is survived by his widow and one daughter.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

station and invited him to use the hospital baths.

"And all evidence indicates that he will do so. Baltimore is closer than Georgia to Washington.

"A member of the committee of three at Warm Springs was Dr. George Bennett, who is now surgeon-in-chief at the Children's hospital.

Four Years In Georgia
"As for Miss Mimms, she was at Warm Springs for four years as a physio-therapist before coming to Baltimore. She now has charge of the building at the hospital, which

20 TOWNSHIPS APPROVE TESTS

Herd Owners Of One Remaining District In County Meet Monday.

With herd owner meetings held in 20 of the 21 townships in Adams county, M. T. Hartman, farm agent, today announced that an effort will be made next Thursday evening to interest cattle owners of Hamilton township, the last township to be organized, in bovine tuberculosis eradication.

The meeting will be held at the Hamilton consolidated school house, near Fairfield, at 7:30 o'clock, at which the state and federal plan for the control and eradication of bovine tuberculosis in cattle will be explained.

To date in Adams county, the cattle in Latimore, Menallen, Huntington, Tyrone, Reading Butler, Straban, Hamilton, Cumberland and Mt. Joy townships have been tuberculin tested.

Qualified for Test
Cattle in the townships of Franklin, Oxford, Mt. Pleasant, Freedom, Union, Germany and Conewago have qualified and are listed with the bureau of animal industry to receive the tuberculin test.

Cattle owners of Highland, Liberty and Berwick townships have been organized and with a few more herd owners signifying their desire to have their cattle tested these townships will qualify to receive the test.

A township is qualified for the tuberculin test when 90 per cent of the herd owners signify their intention of cooperating with the state and federal bureau of animal industry.

A special meeting of Highland township cattle owners will be held on Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Church school to determine whether that township will qualify for the area test.

Initiate 40 Into Elks Lodge Monday

Forty candidates will be initiated in Gettysburg lodge 1045. Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks at a meeting at the lodge home, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The degree team of Carlisle lodge will exemplify the degree for the class, one of the largest in recent years. Refreshments will be served after the initiation.

Set Arm Broken Two Weeks Ago

Although he suffered a broken arm some two weeks ago, little Jack Chamberlain, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Chamberlain, North Stratton street, has just had the bone set.

While playing about his home two weeks ago, Jackie fell and apparently bruised his arm. The lad seemingly suffered no intense pain after a few days but when the discoloration and swelling failed to disappear he was taken to Dr. R. W. Gifford Thursday who discovered and set the fracture. An X-ray taken at the Annie M. Warner hospital Friday revealed a perfect set.

MOTHERS ENJOY FINE PROGRAM

Features Are Based On Various Departments Of Official Publication.

An interesting program, based on the various departments of the magazine, "The Clubwoman," the official publication of the Pennsylvania federation of women's clubs, was given at a meeting of the Gettysburg Mothers' club at the Y. W. C. A., Friday afternoon. Fifty women, including members of the Trinity club and guests, were present.

The part of the "frontispiece" was taken by Mrs. Anna C. Plank, president of the club, and Mrs. C. E. Blühermer gave the "editor's chatter."

Other features of the program included "The Legend of The Adnan," by Mrs. Kenderton S. Lynch, in an Indian costume; three vocal selections, "By the Waters of Minnetonka," "A Winter Lullaby" and "The Lane to Ballybrae," by Mrs. Mark K. Eckert, accompanied by Mrs. Jesse F. Boughton; an impersonation of Eddie Cantor, by Leonard Cook, of Gettysburg college; spring fashions, shown by Mrs. Thomas L. Cline and Mrs. Ralph Z. Oyler, through the courtesy of Mrs. Anna Cavanaugh Bodley, proprietress of the Diana Style shop, Carlisle street, who also spoke; the home making department, Mrs. Lynch; "fact and fiction," Leonard Cook; selections by children of the sixth grade, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Brindle, and a dance by the Misses Jeanette Spangler, Betty Swope, Eleanor Garlach and Mary Elizabeth McIlhenny.

After the program, a social hour was held and refreshments served. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Lynch and Mrs. Guile W. Leffer.

The next meeting will be held on March 8.

ROTARY MEETING

John Shank, of Waynesboro, a graduate of Gettysburg college, will be in charge of the program at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary club at the Y. W. C. A., Monday evening at 6 o'clock. The program is being arranged by the music committee.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Marriage licenses were issued at the office of Clayton F. Palmer, clerk of the courts, this morning to Frank D. Bentz and Bertie L. Sherman, both of York, and to Carl L. Smith, Littlestown, and Grace V. Frock, Hanover.

Last Surviving General in Union Army, Wounded at Gettysburg, Gives Up Golf

Adelbert Ames, Cronie Of John D. Rockefeller On Links, Takes To Bed At 98 Years.

HIS ROMANTIC CAREER GIVEN

Interesting War Record At Gettysburg And Elsewhere Compelled For The Times By William C. Storrick.

When it came to the attention of the editor of The Gettysburg Times that General Adelbert Ames is the last survivor of the generals of the Union Army in the Civil War and that he played an important part in the battles at Gettysburg, we requested William C. Storrick, for many years superintendent of Gettysburg Battlefield guides, now living retired at his home on West Lincoln avenue, to give us General Ames' record, particularly in the battles here. This Mr. Storrick, who is undoubtedly the best informed historian on the battles of Gettysburg and the Civil War in general, generously agreed to do so and the accompanying highly interesting narrative concerning General Ames is the result.

In West Point Battery
The battery to which Ames was assigned was known as the "West Point Light Battery" in command of Captain Charles Griffin, and was the first to enter the city of Washington. At the battle of Bull Run on July 21, 1861, it took an active part, and it was there that Ames was in command of a section of the battery and began his long and distinguished military career that was continued to the end of the war.

This noted battery along with Ricketts was posted on Henry Hill near the Henry House. Griffin, absorbed in the fire of his guns against the opposing artillery, was surprised to see a regiment advancing on his right. He believed these troops to be Confederates, which they were, but was persuaded by some other officers that they were his own supporters as they were clad in blue. Persuaded not to fire, he hesitated a moment. The blue regiment came on warily, its flag hanging limp at the staff in the lifeless heat, told nothing. Suddenly the regiment raised its muskets. "Stop!" cried Griffin, "we're Union men." A belch of smoke answered him and musket balls knocked down nearly every man in the batteries.

Ames Is Wounded
Bureaugard, the Confederate commander, in his description of this attack says: "The movement was made with such dash that the whole plateau was swept clear of the enemy. * * * leaving in our possession the Robinson and the Henry houses, with most of J. M. Ricketts' and Griffin's batteries, the men of which were mostly shot down where they bravely stood by their guns."

In this engagement Ames was severely wounded, but refused to leave the field until too weak to sit upon the caisson, where he had been placed by the men of his command. For this gallant act he was awarded a medal.

Fire Destroys Smokehouse And Meat Of 3 Hogs

Fire believed to have started from a defective chimney destroyed a smokehouse, together with the meat of three hogs, and damaged the washhouse and a bake oven at the farm of Gilbert Bucher, between Mummansburg and McKnightstown, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The damage is estimated between $50 and $75.

The fire broke out in the loft of the washhouse while Mr. Bucher was butchering.

The Cashtown fire company was called out and extinguished the blaze.

Kenneth Johns Is Seriously Ill

The condition of Kenneth Johns, 18, Steinwehr avenue, who was admitted to the Warner hospital last Sunday, suffering from pneumonia, was reported critical this afternoon. His condition has been serious for several days.

Allen Hall, Gettysburg college, was discharged as a patient.

MARRIAGE LICENSES
Marriage licenses were issued at the office of Clayton F. Palmer, clerk of the courts, this morning to Frank D. Bentz and Bertie L. Sherman, both of York, and to Carl L. Smith, Littlestown, and Grace V. Frock, Hanover.

Announce Marriage Of Miss Dorothy Epley And Curtis H. Kime On Friday.

At a party at the home of the bride's parents, Friday evening, announcement was made of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Mae Epley and Curtis H. Kime, both residing on North Stratton street, at Charleston, West Virginia, on June 23, 1932.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. G. G. Synor, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Charleston, at the parsonage.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Epley and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kime.

Announcements of the wedding were contained in small cards concealed in corsages given to the women guests at the party. Each man received a carnation. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the decorations.

Cards and jig-saw puzzles furnished entertainment during the evening, after which refreshments were served.

The bride, who attended Gettysburg high school, has been employed for three years at the G. C. Murphy store, Baltimore street. Mr. Kime is employed at the furniture factory.

Mr. and Mrs. Kime will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

COUNTIAN DIES EATING SUPPER

Mrs. Clara Wortz, 64, widow of Harry L. Wortz, died at her home in Fairfield at 6:30 o'clock this morning of complications.

She was a daughter of the late Joseph and Eliza (Raffensperger) Gelbach, and was born on the Gelbach farm, near Fairfield, and had always resided in that town and vicinity. Mr. Wortz died 13 years ago.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Preston Weikert, Fairfield, and Mrs. Ethel Landis, Sinking Springs, Berks county; two sons, Lawrence Wortz, York, and Luther Wortz, of Wichita, Kansas, who arrived at his mother's bedside Friday evening; three grandchildren; one brother, Charles Gelbach, Baltimore, four sisters, Mrs. Edward Weikert and Mrs. James Caldwell, both of Gettysburg; Mrs. Elmer Stover, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Clarence King, Harrisburg.

Mrs. Wortz was a member of the Fairfield Lutheran church.

Funeral services will be held Monday from the late home at 2 o'clock, the Rev. C. M. Coffelt, officiating, assisted by the Rev. G. Howard Koons. Burial in Union cemetery, Fairfield.

Mrs. Eliza Fickel
Mrs. Eliza Ann Fickel, 64, widow of Jacob A. Fickel and a native of Adams county, died suddenly at 6:30 o'clock, Friday evening, while eating supper at her home in Mt. Holly Springs.

Mrs. Fickel worked at a garment factory in Mt. Holly Springs, Friday, and appeared in her usual health when she returned home. Death was attributed to a stroke.

Mrs. Fickel and her daughter, Miss Goldie Fickel, moved to Mt. Holly Springs from York Springs about two years ago.

Surviving are one son, Charles Fickel, Gardners R. D.; three daughters, Mrs. Charles Kime, York Springs; Mrs. Charles Spertzel, Gardners R. D., and Miss Goldie Fickel, at home; two brothers, John W. Coulson, Hanover, and Frank Coulson, York Springs; one sister, Mrs. Samuel Naugle, Gardners R. D.; eighteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

She was a daughter of the late Andrew and Catherine Coulson and was born near York Springs.

Brief funeral services at the home Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock with further services at Chestnut Grove Lutheran church, near York Springs, the Rev. R. C. Sloop, pastor of the Mt. Holly Springs Lutheran church, officiating. Interment in the cemetery adjoining the church.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO PARENTS

Dr. Albert Cook Myers Dedicates New Publication To Father And Mother.

Dr. Albert Cook Myers, a native of Adams county, chairman of the historical committee of the Valley Forge park commission and secretary of the Pennsylvania historical commission, has just published a book entitled "The Boy, George Washington Age 16, His Own Account of an Iroquois Indian Dance in 1748."

Doctor Cook has dedicated the book to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Myers, of York Springs.

The dedication follows:

"Dedicated to my father and mother, John Toner and Sarah A. (Cook) Myers, wedded for 53 years, now well and active in their eighties, to whom 30 years ago I inscribed my first book. Both heard the cannonade of the Battle of Gettysburg in 1863, mother later, in the same year, shaking the hand of President Lincoln and sitting on the platform with him when he made his immortal address in that historic town. With vivid reminiscences of the past, they are interested in the present. They have been the little narrative and eager in assisting in some of the work of its issue."

England Struck
By Severe Storm

London, Feb. 25 (AP).—Seven scattered deaths, a larger number of persons injured, thousands of outdoor workers thrown out of jobs and widespread disruption of railroad schedules were among the tolls reckoned today in a great snow storm which struck the British Isles Friday.

Communication lines were down in many places, schools were closed and great loss of lambs were reported in a grazing area. Ireland, Wales and Northshire were the worst sufferers but scarcely any part of the British Isles escaped. The surrounding seas were most violent.

MAYOR CERMAK
LOSES GROUND

Victim Of Would-be Assassin's Bullet Treated With Oxygen Tent Today.

Miami, Feb. 25 (AP).—Doctors attending Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, today resorted to artificial respiration in the attempt to save his life. "We are beginning today to use the oxygen tent," Dr. E. S. Nichol, Miami heart specialist, announced at the conclusion of a bulletin.

Oxygen is resorted to by doctors to aid a slowing respiration. Widespread heart muscle damage in the patient was reported by the physician in a bulletin issued after a consultation of one hour this morning.

Exhaustion of the mayor is "quite marked causing anxiety as to the ultimate result."

The latest electro cardiogram (a chart of the heart action) shows widespread heart muscle damage. The mayor's pulse at the time was 120, respiration 24, temperature 99.4. During the night Dr. J. W. Snyder, one of the attending physicians, said Cermak at times was semi-conscious and that he appeared to be in a sort of a daze.

After an examination today however Dr. Frederick Tice, of Chicago, said the patient was "fully conscious."

Members of the Cermak family gathered at the hospital again during the morning. They maintained a watch outside the room until last midnight.

JAPS CAPTURE CITY; PUSH ON

Chinese Unable To Stop Attack Supported By Airplanes And Tanks.

Chinchow, Feb. 25 (AP).—Japanese troops under Lieutenant General Yoshimichi Suzuki captured Chaoyang, second largest city in Jehol today, and continued to advance toward Jehol city, the metropolis and capital.

Japanese reports said airplanes went into action for the first time in the big offensive, hastening Chinese retreat on roads leading to Jehol City and Chihfeng. (Chinese reports said Japanese planes bombed Chaoyang for three days this week).

A new Japanese advance into the Chinese province midway between the two offensives already launched also was disclosed today in Japanese reports.

Aviators were reported to have bombed hostile bodies three times today southeast and southwest of Chaoyang. A bitter wind was whipping across the region with the temperature at 10 degrees below zero.

Contrary to earlier reports that said Chaoyang was occupied without resistance, it was conceded later that stiff fighting on the road east of the city preceded its fall. Chinese reports said 30,000 Japanese with tanks and planes began the assault on Chaoyang Thursday after an aerial bombardment.

It was stated at the Japanese military base here that Chinese defending forces had fled from Chaoyang before the troops under Lieutenant General Suzuki entered.

Changchow, Feb. 26 (AP).—General Nobuyoshi Moto, the emperor's chief advisor to the Manchukuo government and the army commander-in-chief, warned the North China military regime today that "it dares to assume an aggressive action" toward the Japanese army in Jehol the warfare may spread to North China proper.

MAROONS HARD PRESSED, BUT BEAT CARLISLE

Visitors Put Up Stubbhorn Battle But Lack Punch In Closing Periods.

Carlisle 5 2 714
Chambersburg 4 3 571
Shippensburg 1 5 167
Mechanicsburg 0 5 000

Gettysburg high school clinched the first championship of the newly organized Southern Pennsylvania interscholastic league Friday night by defeating Carlisle high in a hard fought game, 18-14, on the local court before a good sized crowd.

This victory carries with it the opportunity of competing in the District 3 eliminations for the state championship.

Coach Forney's quintet was forced to the limit by the hard fighting Carlisle team. The Green and White aggregation made a strong comeback in the third period but after trying the score could not summon enough strength to forge into the lead.

The Maroons got off to a good start when Ridinger caged a goal from beneath the nets. Gulden retaliated with a pretty overhead toss to knot the count. Neff caged one of two fouls to give the visitors the lead but Sheeler cut the cords on a long heave to place the locals out in front. Another long shot by Sheeler was followed by a foul by Ridinger to bring the score to 7-3 at the end of the period.

Maroons Lead at Half
Close guarding, coupled with some poor shooting, kept the scoring at a minimum in the second period. Jones and Kitzmiller twirled long shots through the meshes for the Maroons while Wise looped a goal for Carlisle. At the half Gettysburg led, 11-5.

Coach Zerbe revised his lineup somewhat and in the third period the Green and White dribblers completely dominated play. Wise, Bailey and Neff landed goals that finally enabled the enemy to deadlock the score at 14-11. Just before the period ended Jones looped a goal to give the locals a 16-14 advantage at the close of the round.

Neither team showed any offensive punch in the final quarter and only two points were made, foul tosses by Ridinger and Trostle. Carlisle was well bottled up by the Maroon defense and the locals found it just as difficult to get through the visitors' defense. Despite the lack of scoring the period was furiously fought and exciting.

Ridinger, Sheeler and Jones put up nice games for the Maroons while Wise featured for Carlisle.

Tonight the Maroons play Red Lion high at Red Lion.

Pulls Own Tooth;
Gets Wrong One

Lancaster, Feb. 25.—When it comes to having his teeth pulled, Stehman V. Martin, 18, Elizabethtown, wants to do the job himself.

Suffering with toothache, Martin entered the office of Dr. S. J. Heindel Friday and announced he wanted to pull his own tooth. Believing he was joking, the dentist handed him a forceps. Martin stood before a mirror and, before the dentist could interfere, he pulled the wrong tooth.

Still undaunted the youth went to a nearby garage and standing before another mirror, extracted the right tooth.

It stopped the pain.

BOGUS MONEY
TRIPS DOCTOR

Heart Specialist Must Face Federal Trial In Chicago; $90,000 Involved.

New York, Feb. 25 (AP).—Dr. V. Gregory Burton, New York heart specialist, must go to Chicago to face an indictment charging possession of counterfeit money, Federal Judge Alfred C. Cox ruled Friday.

The physician, who says he was innocently involved through professional services to a patient, was given until Monday to appeal the order and paroled to his attorney. The government charges that he possessed $90,000 in counterfeit bills in Chicago last December 10 and that he is a principal in an international plot.

Russian Tie-Up Denied
Meanwhile federal agents continued their search to locate the source of the counterfeit bills, said to have been the best imitation ever uncovered in this country.

It was reported here the bills had been traced to Russia, but W. H. Moran, chief of the secret service, said in Washington Friday:

"We have no evidence that Soviet Russia or its representatives have any connection with this counterfeiting."

Burton Reported Soviet Agent
It had been reported also that Dr. Burton was a Soviet agent, Moran said he believed the fact that Burton was a Russian by birth, though a naturalized American, might have led to that report.

The secret service head did say, however, it was of the "utmost importance" that Dr. Burton be sent to Chicago to stand trial.

A total of $100,000 in the counterfeit bills of $100 denomination are said to have been passed in Chicago.

Also arrested in the East was Enrique Dechow, known as "Count" Von Buelow. Federal agencies said Dechow admitted handling the bills, but thought they were genuine. He returned willingly to Chicago and is now awaiting trial.

Habes Corpus Writ Denied
The removal order of Dr. Burton was based on an opinion of Francis A. O'Neill, United States commissioner. Judge Cox interrupted the arguments of Burton's attorney to say "the opinion of the commissioner is well grounded and I accordingly grant the motion for removal." He also denied a writ of habeas corpus.

MAROONS MAY MEET HANOVER

Despite having lost to the Hanover high basketballs twice this season, it is probable that the Gettysburg high cagers will meet the York contains in a District 3 playoff game for the state championship at York, Saturday, March 11.

The Maroons earned the right to enter the playoffs by defeating Carlisle here last night to win the championship of the Southern Pennsylvania interscholastic league.

At the recent meeting of the officials of District 3 it was decided that the winner of the Southern Pennsylvania conference would be eligible to compete despite the result of previous games.

Teams eligible to compete for the District 3 honors are Lancaster, Gettysburg, Hanover, and the winners of the Berks county and Lancaster county leagues.

Definite announcement has not been made that the Maroons will meet Hanover but local authorities asserted that this will probably be the team the locals must meet and announcement to that effect is expected to be made soon.

May Abolish
Constable Fees

The practice of constables in Adams county returning complaints to quarter sessions' court four times a year would be abolished if Governor Pinchot signs a bill, passed by the legislature, and now before him for approval.

In Adams county there are 42 constables. For each return they are paid a fee of $2.50 and traveling expenses at the rate of 10 cents a mile. Last year, constables in Adams county were paid a total of $48.50, and in 1931 they were paid a total of $65.10.

Some constables look upon the abolishment of these quarterly returns as a good thing in the way of saving money for the county.

BRIEF RESPITE
IS GIVEN BANKS

Maryland Institutions Given Holiday By Governor; No Cause For Alarm.

Baltimore, Feb. 25 (AP).—Every bank and financial institution in Maryland was closed today by Governor Albert C. Ritchie to stem heavy withdrawals from Baltimore concerns during the week.

Governor Ritchie by his proclamation declared today a legal holiday and accompanied it with a statement that the moratorium will be extended daily to include Monday and Tuesday while the Maryland general assembly prepared legislation to aid the banks.

The proclamation as interpreted by Attorney General William Preston Lane, Jr., affected banks, savings institutions, trust companies and building and loan associations totaling more than 200 in the state as well as the Baltimore stock exchange.

A $13,000,000 withdrawal principally by small depositors from Baltimore banks this week prompted the bankers of the state to confer at the federal reserve branch bank last night with Governor Ritchie and state officials.

The conference was followed by the governor's proclamation and statement.

Plan State Aid
Attorney General Lane immediately began, with the aid of John J. Ghingher, recently appointed state bank commissioner and the state law and banking department, several measures intended to relieve the financial concerns for introduction in the state legislature which reconvenes Monday night.

The provisions of the proposed legislation were not revealed by the state officials but bankers intimated that they would be designed to declare the assets of all banking institutions "frozen" on a basis that would classify them in a manner governing the rate at which withdrawals from each institution would be permitted after the holiday closes.

The hope was expressed by Governor Ritchie that the legislature would enact the measures by Tuesday to permit the banks to reopen Wednesday "with ample facilities available for the needs of the people."

Bankers who attended the conference said the withdrawals resulted from an uneasy state of mind created by the state wide suspension of bank withdrawals in Michigan, the closing of the Title Guarantee and Trust company here, Monday and disclosures made before the senate banking and currency committee in Washington during the week.

Harry Fahnestock, president of the Baltimore stock exchange, announced today the exchange would be closed until further notice.

R. F. C. OFFERS AID
IF IT IS REQUIRED
Washington, Feb. 25 (AP).—Representatives of the Reconstruction Finance corporation have been conferring with Maryland bank officials on the banking situation in the state for the last several days and although no corporation officials would discuss the question it was understood here today that aid for the Maryland banks was likely to be arranged.

Field workers for the corporation are keeping in close touch with state officials as well as bank presidents and directors.

GARRET COUNTY BANKS
OPEN, DESPITE HOLIDAY

Oakland, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—Banks in Oakland, Garrett county, remained open today despite the proclamation of Governor Ritchie declaring a three-day holiday.

Officials said they saw no reason for the temporary closing in this county, which is in the far western section of the state adjacent to Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

BANKS GIVE PATRONS
CREDIT, AS USUAL

Baltimore, Feb. 25 (AP).—With Baltimore banks closed today in accordance with Governor Ritchie's proclamation business heads announced that credit would be extended to patrons as usual and in some instances liberalized.

Albert Hutzler, president of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, said he saw no reason why business should not continue as usual.

"This action is obviously the best for all concerned. I see no reason at all why business should not continue as usual without interruption or difficulty," he said.

No Cause For Alarm
Officials of coal companies indicated they would place no limit on distribution of coal while grocers announced they would move to extend every possible accommodation to their patrons.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson said: "There is no reason why any one should be worried about the funds which the city government has been supplying to provide food and shelter for the unemployed."

Ready To Call Senate

La Plata, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—Walter J. Mitchell, president of the Maryland senate, said today he was ready to call the senate in session at any time the governor requested. He said he plans to communicate with the governor at once.

VALIANT DUST

by Percival Christopher Wren Author of "BEAU GESTE"

SYNOPSIS: The Citadel of Mekazen and the desert nearby seethe with intrigue. Inside the citadel the Kaid and his advisers plot with a stranger they believe is from Germany for help against France; not far away Major Napoleon Riccioli of the Foreign Legion schemes to betray France to the Kaid, and the Kaid to Riccioli's own Napoleonic ambition. Margaret Maligni, English wife of an adviser to the Kaid, is oppressed by the Citadel; she does not know that Otto Bellemere, her childhood sweetheart, is in Riccioli's command. Raisal, the Kaid's son, promises his father many foreign troops.

Chapter 18 MORE PLOTS

"A princely gift, oh, Raisal, my beloved son," smiled the Kaid. "But how shall that come to pass?"

"Have patience and give me a little time, and it shall come to pass, oh my father," assured Raisal in a tone of firm conviction. "Soon you will receive a strange letter from one who is commander of a column among them."

"Allah grant it, my son," replied the Kaid. "His men would be as heaven is to bread, as the forbidden liquor is to the water in which it is mixed. . . . Among the mountains, behind rocks, my men are wolves, yea, our tribesmen are the best soldiers in the world. When charging they are swooping eagles, yea, the foot-man are as cavalry."

"Could we not get them to stand in line, to obey words of command, who could then withstand them? What foreign foot could tread the Country of the Gun? We could clear this land of them, and I would soon be Sultan of Morocco."

"You shall, oh Kaid," murmured Maligni.

"Inshallah," whispered the Kaid, and rising to his feet, signified that the council was ended.

"Stay a moment, Raisal, my son," he added, resuming his seat, and waiting till the hall was empty, continued.

"What is this talk of bringing me foreign soldiers, willing volunteers from the great regiment of strangers that fights for the French? Do you mock me, my son?"

"By Allah, I do not, my father," replied Raisal. "Hearken to plain facts—a tale I had not intended to tell you until it had proved its own truth."

"In Algiers, as was my business, I met an officer of the 19th army corps—from the island of Corsica—where once our ancestors ruled and had their watch-towers and forts. I became his friend, lent him money and having helped him to spend it, lent him more."

"Women were his weakness, women and overwhelming ambition. There is madness in his blood," I thought. I made myself necessary to him, and just when things were getting settled he was sent to the Sahara. Soon I went to the Sahara—and soon he owed me more money. As we grew ever more friendly and intimate, I learned more and more of his ambition, his hopes—yea, his intentions."

"The madness in his blood was increasing—and his weakness for women (of whom he had known too many) and his insane ambition. Sometimes he talked as one smitten of Allah. But only to me. He knew that at any moment I could ruin him, by prosecution for debt; knew that he was already absolutely in my power; so he cared not what he said, cared not what I knew—and he opened his mind to me."

"Then he got himself sent to Ain Prouda—and thence with a little desert column to where the borders of the French Sahara meet those of Mekazen."

"And you had a hand in this, oh Raisal, my son?" smiled the Kaid. Raisal's smile matched that of his father."

"A hand, my father? Nay, nay. But, perchance, a voice. A voice that was but a whisper—in his ear. Just a suggestion . . . or the hint of a suggestion—of a suggestion. Just a tiny seed in wondrous fertile, fruitful soil."

"An independent command—far, far away from superior authority from observation—indeed, from any thought or care or interest in his doings or his fate."

"Who so keen and zealous an officer—who so devoted to his profession, his career and his country—as he who would volunteer, nay, beg, to be sent on such duty, establishing a chain of outposts at the very back of beyond, in the depths of the forsaken desert, in that roasting hell of loneliness, thirst, hardship and deprivation?"

"This to his superiors. . . . A zeal that would ask for a station in hell. This to himself. . . . A small, compact, self-contained and self-sacrificing army, at his absolute disposal. A nucleus for a greater army, an ever-growing army, a mighty army, such as that with which the Madhi of the East swept down upon Africa, or Abd-el-Kader fought the French."

The Kaid stroked his beard as he closely watched Raisal's animated face.

"A moment, my son. . . . You go too fast. This man is a foreigner—an officer of France in command of French troops."

"And he would throw off his allegiance to France. He would use those troops for his own ends. He would lead them into this country, lead them here to Mekazen city—and place them at your disposal, my father."

"By Allah!" cried the Kaid. "He would? He would? And you have brought this about, my son? I cannot believe . . .

"No," he continued, "and if he did—what would be his true and hidden intention? What would he hope to gain? No. It is a trick, I say."

"On his part! On his part, I mean, my son," he added hastily. "What would he hope to gain, oh my father? Power. Wealth. Freedom. Relief from the bonds of irksome discipline and the restraints of the slow promotion that will not make him a great and powerful man until he is an old and feeble one."

"As I showed him—by casual remark and casual hint—he could rise in a day from the rank of major to that of general, field-marshal, commander-in-chief, if he joined you, bringing a well-armed, well-equipped force with him—and found favor in your sight."

"And in truth he could be to you what Kaid Sir Harry Maclean was to the Sultan—and much more. In one brief campaign he could make you Sultan of Morocco. In another he could sweep the French and Spaniards into the sea. In another reconquer Algeria—with the help of the countless hordes of the Bedouin of the Sahara."

"Then Tunisia. And how long would the Italians resist in Tripoli—with the Senussi helping in their overthrow? The English in Egypt—that once great English people that now lets its Empire fall to pieces—how long? Then Africa for the Africans. . . . Islam united. . . . The Pan-Islamic Holy War against the usurping Infidel at last."

"Led by this French officer, my son?" interrupted the Kaid.

"Led by you, oh my father—at the head of an army trained and taught and disciplined by this French officer, and drilled by the soldiers he will bring with him."

"And who will control him—even when he is but commander-in-chief of my present army, and has defeated the Sultan and conquered Morocco in my name?"

"I will, oh my father," was the prompt reply. "I will control him. And when he has outlived his usefulness, or his gratitude, his humble allegiance."

Raisal drew his hand suggestively across his throat.

The Kaid nodded, smiled again, and stroked his beard.

"A great and battle-scarred boar of the mountain forests once invited a lion of the desert to enter into his secret grove and into a hunting partnership with him," observed the Kaid. "The lion of the desert agreed, and was led to the secret grove of the boar of the mountains. . . . They entered into a partnership that day—and that night when the lion felt hungry the boar entered into the lion."

"You have spoken, oh my father," smiled Raisal. "For you are the lion. This officer shall enter into your den and into a hunting-partnership with you, and when the time is ripe, you shall eat him up."

The Kaid sat silent for a few minutes, while Raisal watched him. Suddenly he laughed his famous hearty laugh.

"Let him come, oh my son," he said. "And let him bring all that he can bring. . . . but let him bring his command piece-meal, detachment by detachment, and not as a conquering army. . . . Yea, let him come, and let him go again—when Allah wills."

"I do not think Allah will decree that he go again, oh my father," smiled Raisal, and, rising, respectfully took his leave.

CARDS PRESENT COLORFUL TEAM

Frisch And Hornsby, Once Peers Of Second Basemen, Seek St. Louis Card Jobs.

By Alan Gould

On the basis of the sweeping shake-up they have effected this winter, the St. Louis Cardinals will put some of the strangest contrasts on the major league ball fields this season that the boys have inspected in a long time.

Whether it pays any dividends in gate receipts or in the standing of the clubs remains to be seen, but the Red Birds will exhibit the following at one and the same time:

Dazzy Vance, erstwhile king of the speedball pitchers, and the youthful heir-apparent, Dizzy Dean, an infield including Frankie Frisch, long the defensive peer of the second basemen, and the man with whom he figured in one of baseball's greatest deals, Rogers Hornsby; a deflated hero of the National league's only world series victory in six years, Pepper Martin, trying a bit desperately to regain a position as a regular anywhere in the lineup.

There are two former managers of the club on the roster, Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell, the old backstop, to make things interesting for Gabby Street. If there is anything else lacking, to furnish color and confusion to the old sergeant, he may be able to find it readily when he calls the roll of talent to be assembled within the next few weeks at Bradenton, Florida.

Cool's Lone Touchdown
Ithacans know the story well but since the untimely death of William Cameron (Gib) Cool, it's interesting to recall the lone touchdown credited to Cornell's great center during his three years of gridiron warfare in 1913, 1914, 1915, with the Big Red teams coached by Dr. Al Sharpe.

For his weight and inches, Cool was one of the finest pivots in football history. He yielded to Bob Peck of Pittsburgh in Walter Camp's estimation when All-American selections were made in 1915, but there were many critics who disagreed. Camp did put Murray Shelton, end, and Charles Barrett, quarterback, Cool's teammates, on the 1915 All-American.

Barrett Fixed Him Up
Cool and Barrett, who died in 1924, were close friends and roommates in college, besides making a great combination on the gridiron. Cool's secret ambition was to score a touchdown for Cornell before his varsity career was over and it was Barrett who finally gratified this desire in a game against Virginia Poly in 1915, a week after Cornell had defeated Harvard, 10-0, for the eastern championship.

As Bill Waters relates the story to me:

"Early in the second half, Cool intercepted a forward pass well in the opponents' territory. Three plays took the ball to the 4-yard line. Here Barrett decided to gratify Cool's ambition to score a touchdown."

"Cool was called back. Barrett took an end position, and Anderson passed the ball. In two plunges Cool went over the line, and the stands gave him a cheer."

EIGHT-MINUTE INAUGURAL SPEECH ROOSEVELT AIM

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 25—President-elect Roosevelt confessed Thursday that he hopes to make his inaugural address in eight minutes or less. Told that the radio arrangements for the inauguration showed that only eight minutes had been allotted to him, he said, with a smile:

"That's a good deduction. I am going to try to get the speech within eight minutes." He said he had not written it yet.

Industrial accidents in Ohio in 1932 were the lowest since 1926.

PENNSY LEADS A. A. A. MEMBERS

Membership Is 43,444 More Than Nearest Competitor, Ohio.

Pennsylvania again leads all states in American Automobile Association membership, according to figures for 1932 received from A.A.A. headquarters at Washington by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation. The state's lead over its nearest competitor, Ohio, is 43,444.

New York is third, California fourth and Michigan fifth in the A.A.A. membership list, with Illinois, Missouri, District of Columbia, Indiana and Massachusetts following in the order named.

All states showed a loss in membership over 1931, but Pennsylvania, with thirteen per cent, was the lowest.

For five consecutive years the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, state unit of the A.A.A., has led in membership, but at no time has the margin over other states been so great as at the end of 1932. At the close of 1929 the lead over Ohio, its nearest competitor, was only 8,000.

Four Pennsylvania clubs are included in the A.A.A. list of fifteen leading clubs for 1932 membership. These are the Lancaster Automobile club, the Automobile Club of Philadelphia, the Reading Automobile club and the Lackawanna Motor club, of Scranton. Lancaster is ninth, Philadelphia tenth, Reading eleventh and Scranton fourteenth.

"Among the fifteen leading clubs listed by the A.A.A. are a number with territory comprising entire states, while in Pennsylvania each club has a much more limited district," S. Edward Gable, president of the P. M. F., explained. The fifteen leaders are listed as follows:

1. California State Automobile association; 2. Chicago Motor club; 3. Auto Club of Michigan; 4. District of Columbia; 5. Cleveland Auto club; 6. Automobile Club of Missouri; 7. Automobile Club of New York; 8. Cincinnati Auto club; 9. Lancaster Auto club; 10. Auto Club of Philadelphia; 11. Reading Auto club; 12. Auto Club of Rochester, New York; 13. Carolina Motor club; 14. Lackawanna Motor club, Scranton; 15. Auto Club of Buffalo, New York.

SECOND INQUIRY REPEATS SUICIDE VERDICT ON BERN

Los Angeles, Feb. 25 (AP)—For the second time a verdict that Paul Bern committed suicide was inscribed in county records Thursday in explanation of the Hollywood tragedy that last September cut short the honeymoon days of a popular platinum blond of the movies, Jean Harlow.

District Attorney Buron R. Fitts disclosed that an exhaustive investigation has been carried on quietly into the strange death of the film executive.

Fifty persons—servants, detectives, undertakers, embalmers and others—were quizzed in the new probe. Most of the investigation centered upon a two-sentence note inscribed in a little diary, which is accepted by the district attorney as the word of the dead film executive that he went to his death by his own hand.

Birthday Event Was Big Success:
Sterling qualities of George Washington—the man and statesman—were extolled, and proven greatness of America—the country and the government—were lauded by Dr.
Charles I. Brundage, college faculty, who delivered a heart-stirring address at the public mass meeting held in the court house Thursday evening.

The Rev. N. L. Horn, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, also delivered a short patriotic address.
The Rev. Earl J. Bowman presided at the meeting, held under the joint auspices of the Patriotic Order Sons of America and the Independent Order of Americans. Almost 500 persons were present at the meeting.

Musical numbers were given by a group of high school singers, Evelyn Thomas, Catherine Hartman, Jessica Weaver, Charles Rogers, Jarvis Robinson, Paul Hewitt and Clarence Steinour; a duet by Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Zinn, accompanied by Mrs. Carrie Pretz and a solo by Miss Dorothy Crouse. An orchestra from the Methodist Episcopal church, under the direction of Edward Dougherty, rendered several selections. Miss Lucille Henry, director of music in the public schools, led the group singing.

The invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. E. H.
Hummelbaugh.

The burden of Dumah. He calleth to me out of Seir, Watchman, what of the night? Watchman,
what of the night?

The watchman said, The morning cometh, and also the night:
if ye will inquire, inquire ye: return, come.

The burden upon Arabia. In the forest in Arabia shall ye lodge, O ye traveling companies of Dedanim.

The inhabitants of the land of Tema brought water to him that was thirsty, they prevented with their bread him that fled.

For they fled from the sword, from the drawn sword, and from the bent bow, and from the grievousness of war.

For thus hath the Lord said unto me, Within a year, according to the years of a hireling, and all the glory of Kedar shall fall:

And the residue of the number of archers, the mighty men of the children of Kedar, shall be dimi-

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TREASURE HOUSE

WEALTH is tangible—treasure is intangible. Wealth may melt away, like snow under a hot sun, but treasure is something that flows into the heart and remains as eternal substance.

We pay a dollar or so for a book. As a material piece of workman-ship, profits are distributed, but the soul of a human being, its dreams, its struggles, its hopes and aspirations—they are its intangible treasure which enriches and enlarges countless minds into generation after generation.

A man's brain is a treasure house. So is the heart of a human being. I spent an evening recently, reading from the poems of Elinor Wylie. She died in the full maturity of her genius, yet she had hardly expressed herself—leaving but a few scattered volumes—a mere handful of beauty. But to read these few books is to fill one's mind with treasure both vast and precious.

The world is a vast treasure house. It is impossible to look in any direction without viewing some phase of beauty. One of the dreams of George Gissing was to visit Italy before he died. He had this wish, though most of the time he was in intense bodily suffering. Yet he left a little volume under the title of "The Ionian Sea" which is a treasure house of the simple beauty which he saw and drank in there.

Long before we leave this world, we are often compelled to lose many of the earthly gatherings which we have accumulated. There is a certain something which we accumulate from every experience and every possession, however, which remains with us and which no one can take from us, and which no turn of fate is able to affect.

Each of us has a treasure house which he owns in fee simple forever!

We may all of us carry about with us a veritable gallery of picture treasures. A thousand times have I breathed again the pungent smell of the desert air at night, and listened to the call of the night among the Rockies, or been soothed to sleep by the wash of the waves of the ocean! All in this treasure-house of the memory.

Most of us are rich without giving due credit to life.

Just Folks

by EDGAR A. GUEST

THE HOPELESS MAN

They found him dead beneath a tree!
"Once rich," they said, "he used to be,
But thinking hope from life had fled
He'd put a bullet through his head."

The birds will come again in spring,
The yellow wild canaries sing,
The tulips bloom, and in the town
Friends will go plodding up and down.

Poor men who once were rich will grow
Geraniums and Golden Glow
And find the means and time to spend
To play the neighbor and the friend.

And while he's sleeping in his grave,
Mothers the odds of life will brave
To give their children tender care
In spite of worry and despair.

And even those who trusted him
Will take his heavy burden grim
And bear it on with courage stout
Until the sun comes shining out.

In but a few brief weeks there'll be
The budding leaf on vine and tree.
In but another month or more
The spring will tap at every door.

GOING BACK
We called it going back and, filled
with pride,
We thought that would be difficult
to do,

Vain, foolish folks we were, who little knew
The peace and quiet of an even-tide
When we could sit and visit side by side

And run, together, some loved volume through.
Old games we re-discovered, fresh and new,

And many a truth which we had long denied.

We called it going back. That still is true.
We have gone back to happier,
simpler ways.

To little tasks that it is good to do,
To calmer nights and sweeter holy days;
To home and all its shelters and to brew
Our own tea by our own fire's lovely blaze.

SENATOR LOSES
BET ON SPEECH

Reporter Wins Hat From Senator "Hi" Johnson For Long Report Of Speech.

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—Senator "Hi" Johnson of California probably will think carefully in the future before he makes a wager with some of his press gallery friends on how they treat him and his speeches in their papers.

For the joke is on the senator right now and he'll have to pay and pay. It all happened like this:
Senator "Hi" a few weeks ago arose on the floor of the senate and delivered a speech in which he had some rather harsh things to say about those countries which either have defaulted in their debt payments to the United States or are seeking a way of getting out of further payments.

The next morning in a committee room he ran into a friend of his in the press gallery and proceeded to chide him in good-natured fashion.

"Well, well," said Senator "Hi,"
"I see that you treated me handsomer. I got three inches of space from you on my war debt speech yesterday."

Johnson Loses

"Three inches?" echoed the newspaper man. "You must be wrong, senator. I wrote reams of copy on that speech."

"Bet you a hat, young man," the senator went on, "that I didn't get as much as a half column from you."

"Covered," replied the reporter.
And he began his quest for clippings. He found that the papers had used the story of Senator
"Hi's" speech to a greater extent than even he had thought. He gathered a whole pile of 'em, together and sent them to the senator.

"You win," said the senator. "You get the hat."

Several days passed and the newspaper man heard nothing about the hat. Then one morning he found on his desk a letter of credit on a Washington haberdashery for the bet.

Costly Wager

Winning bets from a senator can't come around so very often.

so this young man lost no time in going down to cash in.

After looking over the entire stock at the haberdashery, he could find no hat that suited him that cost more than $5.00.

"That'll never do," he told the clerk. "Don't you realize this hat is to be paid for by a United States senator? Man, show me a real hat."

Such a hat was not to be found in the store. The clerk suggested that he could order one which would meet the required specifications. He was told to do so.

HUGE 'BOOK OF BOOKS'

BEGIN IN LONDON

London (AP)—A great "book of books" is being compiled at the British museum.
It is to be a catalog of some 4,000,000 volumes—thousands of tons of books in every known language of which there is printed literature except the Oriental tongues.
The work has been progressing for several years—but the cataloguers are still on the letter "A." Their work, when complete, will embrace 165 volumes of 500 pages each.

SCORCHY SMITH

I'M SORRY SCORCHY, NOT TO HAVE BEEN ABLE TO HOLD MY END BUT I'M COMING BACK FAST!

SHUCKS, MR. GARRETT, EVERYTHING IS O.K. I'VE GOT THE BEDDING AND CLOTHES OF THE WRECK AND WELL SOON HAVE DRY THINGS. I'VE PICKED A SPOT BACK IN THE GROVE FOR OUR HUT.

THERE'S NO TELLING WHEN ANOTHER STORM MAY HIT THIS ISLAND.

YES, AND HERES SOMETHING ELSE—WE BETTER START MARKING THE DAYS. OTHERWISE WELL SOON LOSE TRACK. WE MAY BE MARoonED HERE FOR SOME TIME BEING OFF THE SHIPPING LANES.

THAT'S RIGHT! WELL I'VE JUST TRACED A MAP TO SHOW WHERE WE ARE ON THE ISLAND AND WHERE THE PIRATE TREASURE IS SUPPOSED TO BE HIDDEN. LOOK!

OUR WRECKED SLOOP ON BEACH. OUR BASE. OUR CAVE. TREASURE HIDDEN IN CAVE HERE.

STUCK HERE.

YOU KNOW SCORCHY, I WAS SO TWISTED THAT IF YOU HAD ASKED ME WHERE WE WERE I COULDN'T HAVE TOLD YOU. THIS MUST BE RIGHT THOUGH.

WELL, SUPPOSE WE TRY TO LOCATE THE PIRATE TREASURE BEFORE WE WORRY ABOUT BEING RESCUED. START TOMORROW.

Last Surviving General in Union Army, Wounded at Gettysburg, Gives Up Golf

Adelbert Ames, Cronie Of John D. Rockefeller On Links, Takes to Bed At 98 Years.

HIS ROMANTIC CAREER GIVEN

Interesting War Record At Gettysburg And Elsewhere Compiled For The Times By William C. Storrick.

fantasy regiment was recruited and mustered into the service on August 23, 1862. Ames who had been promoted to the rank of colonel, was appointed to its command, with Lieutenant Colonel Joshua L. Chamberlain next in command.

With the exception of Colonel Ames and the Major the officers and men were without military knowledge or experience. The regiment was hurried to Washington where under the efficient training of Ames it was made ready for service in the field and became one of the leading regiments of the war. It was assigned to the Third Brigade, of the First Division of the Fifth Army Corps, then under the command of Major-General Fitz John Porter.

The regiment saw its first service in the battle of Antietam, September 17, 1862. It was in the battle of Fredericksburg, Virginia, on December 13, 1862, and at Chancellorsville, Virginia, on May 1-4, 1863.

Is Given Promotion

In May 1863, Colonel Ames was promoted to the rank of brigadier general when he was a little over twenty-seven years old, and hence became known as one of the "Boy Generals". His next service was at Brandy Station, Virginia, the beginning of the Gettysburg Campaign, where he commanded a detachment of infantry in support of the cavalry under Pleasanton against Stuart's Confederate cavalry on the 9th of June, 1863. General Pleasanton, in his report of the battle, says:—"The marked manner in which General Ames held and managed his troops under a galling fire of the enemy for several hours, is entitled to higher commendation than I can bestow."

Served At Gettysburg

At Gettysburg, General Ames rendered gallant and efficient service, first as commander of the Second Brigade, First Division of the Eleventh Corps, and after the wounding of Barlow he succeeded him in command of the division. The position of the Eleventh Corps in the First Day's battle at Gettysburg was an exposed one and was rendered untenable by attacks of largely superior numbers on both flanks and front. General Ames in his report says:—"At this time General Barlow was wounded, and the command of the division devolved upon me. An order was received from General Schurz, or one of his staff, to occupy the outskirts of the town, but soon another order came to fall back through it. In that movement many of our men were taken prisoners. The hill in the rear of the town was occupied after passing through it, and in this position the division remained during the following days.

Helped Repulse Enemy

"On the evening of the 2nd, an attempt was made to carry the position we held, but the enemy was repulsed with loss, Colonel Carroll, with a brigade from the Second Corps, rendered timely assistance. The batteries behaved admirably."

The position held by Barlow on the First Day is now known as Barlow's Knoll, on the extreme right of the Union line on Howard Avenue and is now marked by the statue of General Barlow and regimental monuments.

The hill referred to in rear of the town is East Cemetery Hill at the foot of which is where the new line was held by Ames. This line is now marked by Wainwright Avenue.

The attack on this line was made by Hay's Louisiana Brigade, generally known as the "Louisiana Tigers", and Hoke's Brigade of North Carolina regiments. The batteries concerned were Weidrich's, Bruce Rickett's, Stewart's and Reynolds' on the crest of the hill and Steven's on the right on Steven's Knoll. The struggle among the guns after the line was compelled to retire from the foot of the hill was one of the most thrilling events of the battle of Gettysburg.

During the retreat of Lee's Army from Gettysburg, General Ames was engaged at Hagerstown, where, in support of Kilpatrick's cavalry, his forces succeeded in entering Hagerstown, and capturing over one hundred prisoners.

After the battle of Gettysburg, the First Division of the Eleventh Corps (Barlow's) in command of Schimmelfennig, was detached and assigned to the Tenth Corps in command of Major-General Gillmore, with Ames still in command of his brigade (Second). The Tenth and Eighteenth Corps constituted the Army of the James under Major-General B. F. Butler, and operated mostly below Richmond at Drury's Bluff and Bermuda Hundred.

On May 29, 1864, two divisions of the Eighteenth Corps and Devens' and Ames' Divisions were sent to Cold Harbor where they cooperated with the Army of the Potomac in the terrible battle that began immediately on their arrival.

After Grant crossed the James and began the siege of Petersburg the troops under Ames were in line of battle near the mine which exploded on July 30th. This was a failure and failed to accomplish anything decisive after a great loss to the Union forces. When the Court of Inquiry on the mine explosion was held General Ames appeared as a witness.

With Third Division

When the Tenth and Eighteenth Corps were consolidated to form the Twenty-fourth Corps, General Ames was in command of the Third Division of the corps and took an active part in the capture of Fort Fisher, the loss of which was a severe one to the South.

At that time Wilmington, North Carolina, was the last port through which the Confederacy received a large part of its munitions of war, and whence was shipped to England, in payment therefor, much of its cotton and tobacco. This was accomplished by the blockade-runners who on account of the immense profits took great risks to get through.

Fort Fisher was at the mouth of the Cape Fear River, and Wilmington is situated on the east bank thirty miles from its mouth.

Takes Fort Fisher

Colonel Lamb, who held Fort Fisher says: "Fort Fisher commanded the last gateway between the Confederate States and the outside world. Its capture and the resulting loss of all the Cape Fear defenses, and of Wilmington, the great importing depot of the South, effectually ended all blockade running. Lee sent me word that Fort Fisher must be held or he could not sustain his army."

Two expeditions were fitted out and attacked Fort Fisher, the first was not a success and withdrew. The second was successful and resulted in the capture of the fort and the evacuation of Wilmington by the Confederates. The fort surrendered on January 15, 1865. General Ames led the land forces in both attacks. The fleet was commanded by Admiral Porter. The capture of Fort Fisher was a great event in the history of the Civil War.

For those who want a complete account of this event they are referred to an excellent article prepared by General Ames and read at a meeting of the Commandery of the State of Massachusetts, Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, published in volume I, pages 291-295, "Civil War Papers."

Brevetted Major General

For gallant and meritorious services in the capture of Fort Fisher, North Carolina, Ames was brevetted major-general in the United States Volunteers, in January, 1865, and for meritorious services in the field during the rebellion he was brevetted major-general of the United States Army to date from March 13, 1865.

To date from July 1, 1863, Ames was brevetted colonel in the Regular Army for gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Gettysburg. By a coincidence, both of his first comrades in arms were in the battle of Gettysburg. Griffin, his battery commander, now in command of the First Division of the Fifth Army Corps, as the successor of General Barnes.

Elected To U. S. Senate

After the close of the war, Ames took an active part in the troublesome Reconstruction Period in the Southern States. He was appointed provisional governor of Mississippi on July 15, 1868, and later was elected United States senator to represent the State in the sessions of the forty-first, forty-second and forty-third congress. His fellow member in the first was Hiram R. Revels, and in the last two James Lusk Alcorn. Schuyler Colfax, vice president, presided over the senate during the first two sessions and Henry Wilson, vice president under Hayes, the last. The speaker of the house during this period was James G. Elaine. Mississippi after much turmoil was among the last to be taken back into the Union.

At the age of 40 years, Ames returned to the North and for some time engaged in business. His wife was a daughter of General B. F. Butler, who during the war had gained great notoriety throughout the South for his management of the Northern troops while in Baltimore and New Orleans.

Served In S.-A. War

For many years, Ames has lived at Tewksbury, Massachusetts, a suburb of Lowell. When war was declared against Spain on April 22, 1898, Ames came from his retirement of private life and on June 28, 1898, he was appointed brigadier-general of United States Volunteers. He was then 62 years old. The Spanish-American War was of short duration. On January 3, 1899, he was mustered out of service for the last time, and honorably discharged. This completed his military record in two wars. For a number of years he has spent the winter months at Ormond, Florida, where he has spent many pleasant days on the golf links with another old man, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., as a companion. Ames is Rockefeller's senior by four years.

Gives Personal Reply

In reply to a personal letter relative to his civilian record since the Spanish-American War, General Ames, at Ormond, Florida, under date of January 21, 1933, in a well written and legible hand kindly replied: "Nothing—engaged in Milling Enterprise only, Yours, &c., Adelbert Ames."

General Ames with his allotment of years far beyond the three score years and ten, has a wonderful respect. He has lived to see the consummation of his wishes in a united country under one flag with a common destiny. He has lived to see 24 stars added to our flag, the population increased many fold great changes in the social, political, industrial and scientific conditions of our country, and it is the sincere wish of his many admirers that a kind Providence may allow him a few years to complete the century.

Ask Charter For System Of Barter

An association whose business is to be done by barter for the benefit of the unemployed has made application to the secretary of the Commonwealth for a charter.

This is the first of the kind to be received in Pennsylvania, and is made by a group of Philadelphia residents. The name selected is the Pennsylvania exchange co-operative association of Philadelphia. The capital stock is $1000.

It asks to do business under the terms of the co-operative productive and distributive association act passed in 1887.

It is believed to be the first attempt in the state to carry on barter transactions under legal sanction.

Township governments in Ohio spent more than $12,000,000 in 1931.

HORSES, MULES AND COWS

At the Bushman farm, one-half mile south of Gettysburg on Baltimore "pike."

TEN HEAD OF GOOD WORK HORSES AND MULES, some good single line leaders.

C. H. REBOK AND SON will sell twenty to twenty-five head of Franklin county cows and bulls. This being an accredited county at last test just finished we will give a test sheet with every animal purchased.

These cows consist of Holstein, Guernsey and Jerseys, also a few registered cows, these cows were bought by us from our local farmers, and must be as represented day of sale. If in need of a close springer or a fresh cow do not miss this sale, as we are going to show a real load of cows, showing lots of milk. Cows will be sold before horses, so be on time as you know Mr. Rebok sells the right kind. We will also have some shoats. Any farmer having anything in the line of machinery or stock get in touch with us, we will sell same for you. Terms made known day of sale.

Reports Progress In Building Dam

Secretary Lewis E. Staley of the department of forests and waters reports that the paving of the spillway channel of the 2400-foot Pymatuning dam across the Shenango river in Crawford county has been completed.

The construction engineers are awaiting the return of spring weather to build the stone walls on the crest of the dam, and to finish the surfacing of the roadway which will cross its top. Drawings have been prepared for the construction of a stone gatehouse for which contracts and specifications have been drawn up. The water and power resources board will advertise for bids within a week or two.

Work on the highway connecting Espsville, Pa., and Andover, Ohio, which it was necessary to relocate because of the raising of the water level of the reservoir, has been continued during the winter months. Clearing operations incidental to the raising of 2.5 miles of the embankment of the Pennsylvania railroad, necessitated by the flooding of the reservoir, are expected to be finished early in March. This work, practically all done by hand labor, is being completed under an allocation of $170,000 from the emergency relief board.

Construction of the dam was started in October, 1931. When completed the reservoir will have an area of some 16,000 acres and a capacity of 64,000,000 gallons. It will be the largest artificial lake in Pennsylvania.

Joe Lapchick and Davey Banks, the long and short of the Original New York Celtics. Manager and captain of the team, Lapchick is considered the king of centers in professional basketball. "Diminutive Davey" holds a similar honor at the forward position, ranking as the fastest in the game today. Both will appear here in the Eddie Plank memorial gymnasium Monday night, February 27, when the Celtics meet the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings.
